

Interconnected Regulatory Obligations:

How It Impacts Your Business Survival In The E-Invoice Era

Date: 10th June 2026
Time: 9.00am to 5:00pm
Venue: Armada Hotel,
Petaling Jaya, Selangor

In the past, a company could fix a "Tax problem" without ever worrying about "data problem", those days are over. Today, companies can no longer view these as separate issues. We have entered an era of interconnected regulatory obligation, where data obtained from one source (e.g., e-Invoice) can instantly trigger compliance flags in another (such as Stamp Duty, Service Tax, or PDPA).

The government is moving toward highly digital visibility, effectively ending the history of hidden transactions. The key tool for this dragnet is e-Invoicing, a real-time tax declaration system that began implementation in 2024. It serves as the digital backbone that connects every transaction to the broader compliance boundary.

OBJECTIVE:

To date, your various departments are operating separately with their own SOP and preference. Your finance department is focusing on e-Invoice implementation, SST, Withholding Tax, and Transfer Pricing. Whereas your legal team is worrying about PDPA, AMLA, and MACC liability. Meanwhile, HR is concerned about the Gig Workers Bill and Immigration compliance.

But the real risk isn't in these individual lists—it is that the regulators are now talking to each other. LHDN, Customs, SSM, MACC, MCMC, and the Immigration Department are integrating their data. A single discrepancy in your e-Invoice can now trigger a domino effect. E.g., foreign workers' wages, which may expose a hidden Immigration violation and sparking AMLA investigation.

The goal of this workshop is to provide integrated compliance training that meets most of the department's needs. We will alert your company to understand the regulatory landscape so they don't comply in one area but breach the law in another.
